CLOTHING & FASHION

Re-presentation Policies of the Fashion Industry

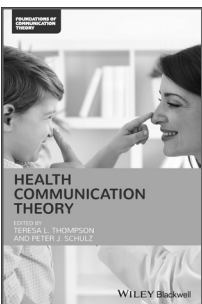

Discourse, Apparatus and Power

Eleni Mouratidou

The book studies the way the luxurious fashion develops re-presentational politics by reinvesting symbolic fields such as art and culture, religion and the sacred as well as politics, in other words fields that represent a certain common pattern of life and a common interest. It showcases a semiotic approach of the way art exhibitions, print and audiovisual advertising, publishing and distribution politics as well as special ready to wear collaborations with arts such as Jeff Koons reveal the fashion industry's gesture of pretending being a non-commercial structure especially in order to cover up its industrialisation and banalization process.

Remember Me

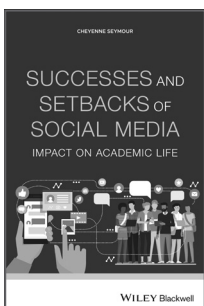

Memory and Forgetting in the Digital Age

Davide Sisto & Alice Kilgarrieff

How our growing reliance on the internet is changing the way we remember and forget. Social media platforms like Facebook and Instagram constantly feed us with memory objects such as images, posts and video clips which both interrupt and restructure the normal cycle of remembering and forgetting which is characteristic of human memory, yet at the same time, these platforms could disappear or be replaced at any time, so our memories are also vulnerable to total oblivion.

AMERICAN LITERATURE

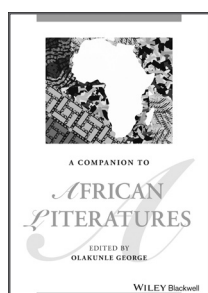

What is African American Literature?

Margo N. Crawford

What is African American Literature? focuses on feeling as form in order to show that African American literature is an archive of feelings, a tradition of the tension between uncontainable black affect and rigid historical structure. Crawford argues that the textual production of affect (such as blush, vibration, shiver, twitch, and wink) reveals that African American literature keeps reimagining a black collective nervous system.

PHILOSOPHY SPECIAL TOPICS

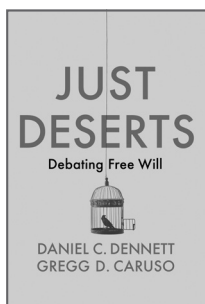

Critical Philosophy of Innovation and the Innovator

Xavier Pavie

Are innovators conscious of their role, or do they only consider innovation in a way that is over-capitalist and ultra-liberal? Starting with philosophy, it is possible to examine innovation from a different perspective, outside of the usual categories of the engineering and management sciences. It is thanks to philosophy that innovation can be (re)viewed as more responsible, ethical and humanist, because philosophy is just as curative as it is preventive, and just as cathartic as it is therapeutic.

Just Deserts

Debating Free Will

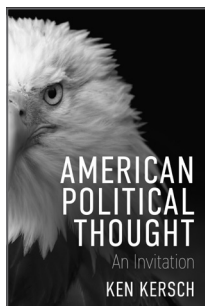

Daniel C. Dennett & Gregg D. Caruso

Some thinkers argue that our best scientific theories about the world prove that free will is an illusion. Others disagree. Just Deserts brings together two philosophers – Daniel C. Dennett and Gregg D. Caruso – to debate their respective views on free will, moral responsibility, and legal punishment. In three extended conversations, Dennett and Caruso present their arguments for and against the existence of free will and debate their implications.

COMPARATIVE POLITICS

American Political Thought

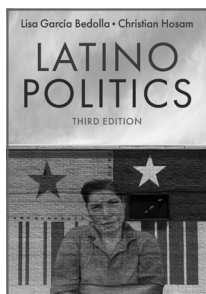

An Invitation

Ken Kersch

Covering the full span of U.S. history, American Political Thought offers a lively yet sophisticated overview of the nature and dynamics of American Political Thought for students and general readers alike. Award-winning scholar Ken Kersch's engaging introduction situates the key debates in their historical, political and cultural context. He introduces the touchstone frameworks and ideas that are both deeply ingrained and yet have been actively re-made in a country that has spent 250 years of shifting circumstances battling over their real-world implications.

POLITICAL ISSUES & BEHAVIOR

The Ungovernable Society

A Genealogy of Authoritarian Liberalism

Grégoire Chamayou & Andrew Brown

A brilliant work that shows how the political contours of our contemporary neoliberal societies took shape in the crisis-laden decade of the 1970s. By waging war against the trade unions, shareholder values and politics under the aegis of the State, corporate and economic actors ingratiated themselves in government circles and were therefore able to command much greater levels of power than before, a state of affairs which continues to this day.

POLITICAL PHILOSOPHY & THEORY

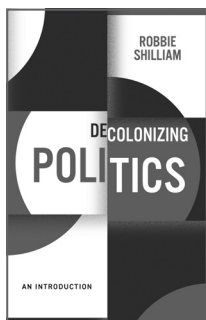

Can Democracy Safeguard the Future?

Grahame Smith

Our democracies repeatedly fail to safeguard the future. From pensions to pandemics, health and social care through to climate, biodiversity and emerging technologies, democracies have been unable to deliver robust policies for the long term. In this book, Graham Smith, a leading scholar of democratic theory and practice, asks why? Exploring the drivers of the short-termism that dominate contemporary politics, he considers ways of reshaping legislatures and constitutions and proposes strengthening independent offices whose overarching goals do not change at every election.

Freedom of the Border

Paul Scheffer & Liz Waters

This book addresses head-on one of the most controversial issues of our time: the nature and purpose of borders, and what role borders should play in our increasingly globalized world. In contrast to those who argue that the freedom of movement is a basic human right, Scheffer argues that borders make freedom possible. Without borders, and the regulation of access to territories and rights that go with them, freedom, democracy and redistributive justice cannot be achieved.

National Identity and State Formation in Africa

Manuel Castells & Bernard Lategan

A ground-breaking analysis of African state formation from world-class scholars. This book offers a fresh perspective on state formation in Africa, showing how the interplay between globalization and the assertion of local identities has played itself out across the African continent. It highlights a paradoxical dynamic that has been crucial to state formation in Africa: namely, that people define and defend their values against global forces while simultaneously using the interconnectivity of global networks to maximise their particular interests.

The Object Relation

The Seminar of Jacques Lacan, Book IV

Jacques Lacan & Adrian Price

An examination of phobia and fetishism by the greatest psychoanalyst since Freud. In this Seminar, Lacan confronts and criticizes the theory of object relations defended by some schools of psychoanalysis; he argues that Freud was concerned, not about the object, but about the lack of the object. Lacan develops his analysis of the function of the object in phobia and in fetishism, particularly in relation to Freud's famous case of Little Hans.

Infoselves

The Value of Online Identity

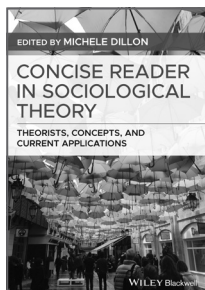

Demetra Garbasevski

Designed for graduate students in multiple fields of communication—advertising, branding, public relations and digital media—Infoselves cuts across fragmentation within the topic, comparing and contrasting multiple perspectives for better understanding, and explains the need for personal branding in a Web 2.0 culture and its related social media benefits. It considers online celebrities, microcelebrities, and nano-celebrities and their value as self-identity examples.

SOCIAL THEORY

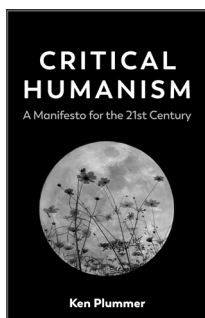

Concise Reader in Sociological Theory

Theorists, Concepts, and Current Applications

Michele Dillon

Concise Reader in Sociological Theory contains excerpts from the writings of a wide range of key theorists who represent the dynamic breadth of classical and contemporary, macro- and micro-sociological theory. The selected writings elaborate on the core concepts and arguments of sociological theory, and, along with the commentary, explore topics that resonate today such as: crisis and change, institutions and networks, power and inequality, race, gender, difference, and much more.

Critical Humanism

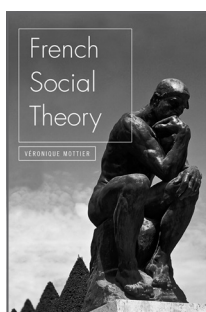

A Manifesto for the 21st Century

Ken Plummer

In an age of post- and trans-humanist turns, this is a personal and passionate call for thinkers, researchers and activists to not turn their backs on humanism. Critical Humanism encourages us to build our humanist vision: we have actually achieved much and can achieve much more. Restoring our belief in humanity has never been more important.

French Social Theory

Veronique Mottier

An engaging guide to key French social thinkers whose work has had a critical impact on the social sciences globally. French Social Theory covers a broad range of theorists from Simone de Beauvoir, Michel Foucault and Pierre Bourdieu, to recent thinkers such as Luc Boltanski and Jean-Claude Kaufmann, and unveils the underwritten dialogue between these great thinkers, including the disagreements, controversies and debates surrounding their ideas.

The Age of Fitness

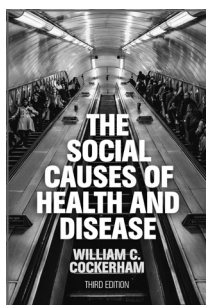

How the Body Came to Symbolize Success and Achievement

Jürgen Martschukat & Alex Skinner

This book offers a fresh perspective on why so many people jog, go to gyms, run marathons and engage in other forms of exercise and physical activity in our societies today. In our contemporary age of fitness, getting fit is not just a form of exercise but a means of achieving success or failure in a society that sets great store by self-responsibility, performance, market and competition.

SOCIOLOGY OF HEALTH & ILLNESS

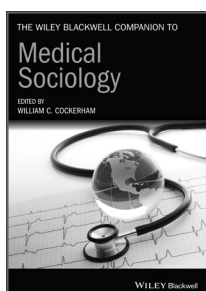

The Social Causes of Health and Disease

William C. Cockerham

A leading medical sociologist provides a frank examination of the evidence for the social causes of health and disease. The Social Causes of Health and Disease offers a coherent introduction to social epidemiology, as well as challenging existing literature that only focuses on individual causes of illness and disease. This new updated edition includes expanded material on the relationship between gender and health, implications of the life course for health behavior, and the effects of social capital.

SOCIOLOGY OF THE FAMILY

Childhood in a Global Perspective

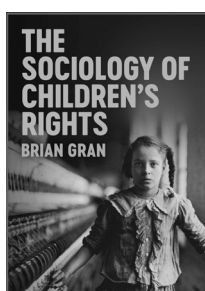

3rd Edition

Karen Wells

This popular book provides a compelling introduction to thinking about childhood in rigorous and critical ways. Taking children seriously as active participants in society, Childhood in a Global Perspective explores key social issues such as how children are constituted as raced, classed and gendered subjects; how school and work operate as sites for the governing of childhood; and how children both shape and are shaped by politics, culture and the economy.
