Rewired for Digital: The McKinsey Guide to Outcompeting with Technology

Eric Lamarre, Kate Smaje, Rodney Zimmel

Digital transform is hard. It is tempting to point to the "usual suspects" as the reasons for these shortfalls: cumbersome IT estates, poor data, lack of talent, among others. These issues are real, but they also tend to mask more fundamental issues that are the real culprits behind stalled transformations, including:

- Pursuing changes that are not economically meaningful to the business. It's good to experiment, but companies too often focus on "shiny objects," such as launching a new app, that signal change but don't deliver substantial

Handbook of Self-Cleaning Surfaces and Materials: From Fundamentals to Applications

A Fujishima

The first truly comprehensive work on this rapidly developing field in two volumes

Self-cleaning surfaces are those that can be cleaned, for instance, by sun or rainwater, without human intervention. They are sometimes found in nature but developing man-made equivalents has been a major area of nanotechnology research in recent years. Self-cleaning tiles, glasses, paints, and textiles have been developed to date, and the number of applications for this technology is growing.

We are Forests: Inhabiting Territories in Struggle

Jean-Baptiste Vidalou, Stephen Muecke

From the forest of Sivens in France to the Hambach forest in Germany, from the Broadback forest in Canada to the rainforests of Borneo, something has shifted in these wild spaces over the last decade or two. People have begun to inhabit the forests, oppose the loggers and use their bodies as shields, motivated by the determination to resist the lethal ecosystem of commercial exploitation. Forests have become a battleground in the struggle between groups with fundamentally divergent aims and objectives. Forests are made up of insurgents. Jean-Baptiste Vidalou went to see some of these forests ...

The Culture of Stopping

Welzer

Our culture has no concept of stopping. We continue to build motorways and airports for a future in which cars and planes may no longer exist. We're converting our planet from a natural one to an artificial one in which the quantity of man-made objects – houses, asphalt, cars, plastic, computers and so on – now exceeds the totality of living matter. And while biomass continues to decline due to deforestation and species extinction, the mass of man-made objects is growing faster than ever. We're on a treadmill to disaster.

To get off this treadmill, argues Harald Welzer, we need to

My Life in Fragments

Bauman

Zygmunt Bauman was one of the great social thinkers of our time: inventor of the idea of liquid modernity, he transformed our way of thinking about the social conditions shaping our lives today. His own life was shaped by the great social forces that scarred the second half of the 20th century – war, communism, anti-Semitism, forced migration. His work bears the traces of an outsider who knew all-too-well the enormous impact that social and political forces can have on personal lives.

Bauman never wrote a full biography, but he wrote extended letters to his daughters in which he recounted ...

Left Is Not Woke

Susan Neiman

If you're woke, you're left. If you're left, you're woke. We blur the terms, assuming that if you're one you must be the other. That, Susan Neiman argues, is a dangerous mistake.

The intellectual roots and resources of wokeism conflict with ideas that have guided the left for more than 200 years: a commitment to universalism, a firm distinction between justice and power; and a belief in the possibility of progress. Without these ideas, Neiman argues, they will continue to undermine their own goals and drift, inexorably and unintentionally, towards the right. In the long run, they risk becoming ...

Insulin: A Hundred-Year History

S Bradwell

In 1922, an unlikely team of researchers in Toronto made one of the most important medical breakthroughs of the century: insulin. Their discovery seemed miraculous. When it was given to diabetic patients on the brink of death, their condition rapidly improved. Those present could barely believe their eyes: they had witnessed resurrection.

However, this was no simple cure. Injections must be taken for life. Without them, symptoms quickly return, often with fatal results. But while a lifetime on insulin poses great challenges, it also offers opportunities. In this revelatory history, Stuart Bradwell...

Great People Make People Feel Great: With Cloud Nine Thinking

Stuart Holah, Adrian Webster

Why Cloud Nine Thinking?

"If you want to grow, start by making other people feel taller"

This sentence is one I find myself sharing more than any other when speaking with entrepreneurs, business owners and especially large organisations when they ask how they should attract and retain great talent. These managers know that people are the key to helping them stand head and shoulders above the competition and they are genuine in their desire to foster talent in their teams. Yet most of them are seeking that magic one thing they can

Sell More with Attention Hacking: How to Survive the Social Media Jungle

R Kiera

Why do people queue in front of Apple stores all night long — but not with you? And isn't it grotesque that mobile phones are more in demand than, for example, products for wealth accumulation, health and family protection? However, this does not have to be the case. There are tools and strategies that your industry can use to attract customers. This book uses the insurance industry to show how to do it. And it's easy! Because insurers and intermediaries help people in their darkest hours. But despite billions invested in sales and marketing, no one is interested in it.
